

Sales Assistant - Work from your home office as a sales assistant for a positive, growing, and fun promotional products company. Enjoy assisting a very busy sales rep with project management, product research, presentation preparation and client relationship building. You will have a blast taking on different tasks every day and helping clients build their brand with promo products. You must have prior promo products experience, an eye for detail that is laser sharp, and written and communication skills that would make your high school English teachers proud! MSP is a top 1% promotional products distributor, recognized as an industry leader.